6. METHODOLOGY

- 6.1 Arriving at the equity share entitlement ratio for the proposed demerger of demerged undertaking of SIDCL into VHRPL would require determining the relative values of demerged undertaking attributable to each equity share of SIDCL and the equity shares of VHRPL. These values are to be determined independently but on a relative basis.

There are several commonly used and accepted methods for determining the Entitlement ratio for the proposed demerger of demerged undertaking of SIDCL into VHRPL which have been considered in the present case, to the extent relevant and applicable, including:

- a) Market price method,
- b) Comparable companies quoted multiples method,
- c) Discounted cash flows method, and
- d) Net asset value method.

There are a large number of factors to consider when estimating the value of any Company/business or its assets. These factors vary for each valuation depending on the unique circumstances of the Company/business or its assets and general economic conditions that exist at the effective date of the valuation.

The application of any particular method of valuation depends on the purpose for which the valuation is done. Although different values may exist for different purposes, it cannot be too strongly emphasized that a valuer can only arrive at one value for one purpose. Our choice of methodology of valuation has been arrived at using usual and conventional methodologies adopted for transactions of a similar nature and our reasonable judgment, in an independent and bona fide manner based on our previous experience of assignments of a similar nature.

6.2 Market price method

Under the "Market" Approach, the market price of equity shares as quoted on a recognized stock exchange is normally considered as the fair value of the equity shares of that Company where such quotations are arising from the shares being regularly and freely traded in, subject to the element of speculative support that may be inbuilt in the value of the shares.

Further, in the case of a merger/demerger, where there is a question of evaluating the shares of one Company against those of another, the volume of transactions and the number of shares available for trading on the stock exchange over a reasonable period would have to be of a comparable standard.

Therefore, Market price method has not been considered for valuation of equity shares of SIDCL. Further, since the shares of VHRPL are not listed, the market approach has not been considered for this valuation.

6.3 Comparable companies quoted multiples method

Under this method, the valuation multiples of similar or comparable publicly-traded companies are applied to value a target company. This valuation is based on the principle that market valuations, taking place between informed buyers and informed sellers, incorporate all factors relevant to valuation. Relevant multiples need to be chosen carefully and adjusted for difference between the circumstances.

There are no comparable quoted companies of similar size, stage, growth profile etc. as that of target Companies. Therefore, this method is not suitable for valuation of Equity Shares.

6.4 Discounted cash flows method

Under the Discounted cash flows method for Free Cash Flow to Firm, the business is valued by discounting its projected free cash flows for the explicit forecast period and the perpetuity value, if any thereafter.

The free cash flows represent the cash available for distribution to the owners. The free cash flows in the explicit period are discounted by the cost of equity. The cost of equity is an appropriate rate of discount to calculate the present value of the future cash flows as it considers return on equity.

6.5 Net asset value method

The asset based valuation technique is based on the value of the underlying net assets of the business either on a book value basis or realizable value basis or replacement cost basis. This method is mainly used in case where the asset base dominates earning capability.

6.6 We have used average of Discounted cash flows method and Net asset value method for valuation of demerged undertaking of SIDCL and DCF method for valuation of VHRPL which have been considered appropriate by us.

7. RECOMMENDATION OF EQUITY SHARE ENTITLEMENT RATIO

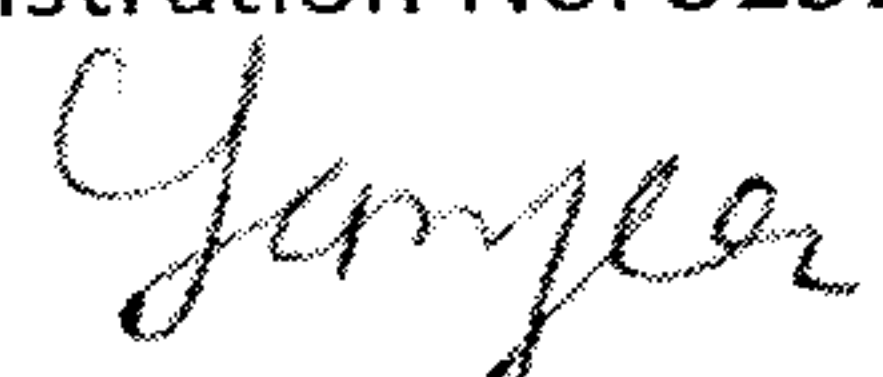

The basis of demerger of the Demerged undertaking of SIDCL into VHRPL would have to be determined after taking into consideration all the facts and methods mentioned here in above. Though different values have been arrived at under each of the above applicable methods, for the purposes of recommending the equity share entitlement ratio of equity shares, it is necessary to arrive at a single value of the Demerged undertaking attributable to each equity share of SIDCL and VHRPL. It is, however, important to note that in doing so, we are not attempting to arrive at the absolute equity values of the Demerged undertaking and VHRPL but at their relative values to facilitate the determination of the equity share entitlement ratio. For the purpose, it is necessary to give appropriate weights to the values arrived at under each method.

The equity share equity share entitlement ratio has been arrived at on the basis of a relative equity valuation of the Demerged undertaking attributable to each equity share of SIDCL and VHRPL based on the applicable various methods explained here in above and various qualitative factors relevant to each Company and the business dynamics and growth potentials of the businesses, having regard to information base, key underlying assumptions and limitations.

We have independently applied applicable methods discussed above and arrived at their assessment of value per share of the Demerged undertaking attributable to each equity share of SIDCL and VHRPL. To arrive at the consensus on the equity share entitlement ratio for the proposed demerger, suitable rounding off have been done in the values arrived at by us.

In the light of above and on consideration of all the relevant factors and circumstances as discussed here in above, we consider that the equity share entitlement ratio for the proposed demerger of the Demerged undertaking of SIDCL into VHRPL of 5 (five) fully paid up equity shares having face value of Rs. 10/- each of VHRPL for every 1 (one) fully paid up equity share of Rs. 10/- each held in SIDCL will be fair and reasonable.
